Australian Government | Jobs and Skills Australia

Coming soon: JSA data API

Jobs and Skills Australia (JSA) is developing an Application Programming Interface (API) to make it easier for people and organisations to access and use JSA data. Following an initial early access release, the API is planned to be publicly available from December 2026.

An API allows computer systems to securely exchange information. For your team, this could mean less time manually downloading and preparing data, and more time using it to develop insights, reports and services.

What could this mean for you and your team?

The JSA data API could help your team:

- Access selected JSA data more easily.
- Reduce manual data handling and repetitive processes.
- Connect JSA data with your dashboards, applications and reporting tools.
- Keep reports and digital products up to date.
- Automatically display the latest available JSA data in reports and digital products.

How can the API be used?

Examples include:

- A student downloading the portion of data they need, which may assist when internet access is limited.
- An organisation connecting their dashboards and reporting tools directly to JSA data to always use the latest data.
- A researcher or analyst automating regular data updates from JSA for reporting or analysis.

How will it work?

Users will be able to request selected JSA data in JSON format, supporting automated access and integration with dashboards, applications and reporting tools. Supporting documentation and code will be available to help users get started.

Access and registration

- The JSA data API will be publicly available at no cost.
- Users will need a myID to request access to the API.

Target public release date: December 2026

Interested in early access?

If your team would like to participate in the early access pilot, please email DataGovernance@jobsandskills.gov.au with the subject line 'JSA Data API Early Access'.

Please include:

- Your name and organisation
- The best contact for further information.

Contact us:

Interested in learning more? Sign up to receive updates, release information and future announcements. DataGovernance@jobsandskills.gov.au

Further information

Connect with us

Roadshow 2026